How to Use Statistics.

One long engaged in statistical work feels more and more keenly, as the results of original investigation, not only the limitations of statistics, but the fact that per-fectly honest and truthful statistical tables may not only be vicious in themselves but may also lead to the most worthless conclusions, the tables them-selves not indicating and it not being possible to fully indicate by them the exact truth they contain. The method I believe is the surest for ascertaining conditions and the truest on which to base conclusions, but the method must be supplemented by full and frank analysis. A statistical table independent of such analysis is to me what a red flag is to a bull. It immediately excites antagonism and invites attack.

The value of any statistical presentation must depend upon the basis upon which it is made, the integrity of the collection of the various elements of it, and the analysis which accompanies it. No one has any right to quote statistical tables without using and understanding the analysis of them. It is because of the flippant and carcless use of statistics by writers and speakers that it receives their condemna-

dstone That Has Effected Cares of Hydrophobia and Cancer. If all that has been said of the almost supernatural powers of the madstone be true the people of Chicago and vicinity need have no fear of blood poisoning or hydrophobia in the future. A real madstone, in tiptop working order, has made Its appearance in the city, the custodian being Mrs. Daisy Malzahn, formerly of Columbus, W. Va. She is prepared to cure the most obstinate of blood diseases by simply applying the peculiar looking pebble, which she has treasured for years. "The stone which is my greatest treasure was found in a sand bank near Wheeling over fifty years ago by a man named Williams," said Mrs. Malzahn, "and it came into my possession about five years ago. I have used it a number of times, and always with perfect results. Among the cases in which it has proved beneficial is that of Mrs. E. W. Schneider, of Columbus, O. This lady had suffered for years. Her mouth was caten with cancer, and her case was one of cleven years' standing. A number of doctors had all pronounced Mrs. Schneider's trouble cancer, and it looked as though ber case was hopeless. The stone was applied and it took hold and be-gan to 'nurse' immediately. In two weeks the lady was entirely cured, and today she is a well woman

"Mrs. Mary Fleming, also of Columbus, had blood poisoning in her left arm. The limb had swollen to treble its normal size and was of an angry purple color. A surgeon had just decided to ampute the arm at the shoulder when I heard of it. The stone was applied, and it 'moved' so hard that Mrs. Fleming fainted. The treatment was kept up and in two hours the discoloration had disappeared and in three days she was recovering. She is now en-

"Eddie Logan, a little boy of Logan, O., was bitten in the leg by a rabid dog. I had the boy brought to Columbus. The stone was applied and the boy was all right in an hour. Another boy, Charlie Grey, of Kansas City, was also suffering from rabbies and I cured him by applying the stone. "It has cured a great number of cases of hydrophobia and blood poisoning and also a number of snake bites-copperheads and rattlesnakes. I don't believe any amount of money would induce me to let it go."

The stone is about an inch in length and three-quarters of an inch in width. It is of a peculiar shape, being a quarter of the original stone which was split up and divided years ago. It is covered on three sides with little cells filled with "suckers" that closely resemble tiny seashells. These suckers send out minute tongues, when the stone is applied, and each little tongue draws on the wound with astonishing power. The stone absorbs all of the poison drawn out, and when the wound is clean the stone drops off. It is then placed in milk, which fluid will instantly turn green. The stone is then cleansed and is ready for another application.—Chicago Tribune.

How to Keep Witches Away.

There are a great many people whom I know, both white and colored, who never go to bed on a windy night without first sprinkling salt around their beds. This keeps the witches out. Another protection is to set up a knife, fork and spoon at the head of the bed, and then, so say the sufferers, one can see the witch that visits one and tell exactly who it is. Placing bent pins in the track of a reputed witch is another method of proving withcraft. If upon returning in the same tracks she limps, then the pins have struck home in their uncanny mission, and she is a witch. -Cor. Chicago News.
